In the heart of the Valley of Basaburua , this typical farmhouse dating from the eighteenth century Navarre has been renovated and transformed into a charming little hotel . On the outside of the house facades combine white plastered walls, stone and woodwork . The rooms reflect the aesthetics of the surrounding countryside : exposed wooden beams , oak furniture , wooden floors , feather duvets , latex mattresses and cotton linens on the beds. The bright dining room of breakfast has a wooden balcony with fantastic views of the valley as well as several of the rooms . To access it crosses a forest of oak and beech along a paved path of 1 km . It Beruete Forest , a magical place to enter and reach the cider , or go further and be amazed by the customs and crafts of the area and explore more forests dotted with dolmens and legends. ROOMS The " iratxo " or " Galtzagorri " are small elves that do a great job helping with housework . In Peruskenea has made ??rooms different names by which they are known in these parts , and if poneis a pincushion uncovered on the night of San Juan , you can catch them. Try , do you leave ?
